Subject: News story - Last night's Dec 5 Google Project Community Meeting

PBCE – Last night was a milestone community meeting for our department, as we shepherd the review process for Google’s Downtown West Mixed Use Plan.

While roughly 20 protestors showed up with signs in hand, they remained largely quiet, thanks to security staff and Librarian Jill Bourne who clearly explained the Library’s rules that “while we support freedom of speech, we also support that no one takes actions to prevent others from having access to information.”
