How's this (www.sanjoseca.gov/GoogleProject) – Dylan had made a subhead for these but your earlier instructions seemed to say that should come off ... so does adding the posting date parenthetically work for you? Or we could go back to a subhead over these more recent documents, e.g., "Documents Posted Nov. 25, 2020"

- Applicant Response to Initial Submittal Comments
- Draft Downtown West Consistency Check Form (posted 11/25/2020)
- Draft Downtown West Subsequent Review (posted 11/25/2020)
- Revised General Plan Amendment Language (posted 11/25/2020)

Also, is there a date set for when comments on the project will close? We should start to indicate that closure 2-4 weeks ahead of time and do some social media posts with the deadline.

It looks good, i am okay with having it on both. I did see the new resubmittal items linked, but is there a way to note those were provided on November 25. I do not want people to think those were provided in Oct.

I just updated the top of the page: www.sanjoseca.gov/GoogleProject. Please signal if this works. I left the same feedback info under the Oct. 19 meeting at the bottom of the page as well. Maybe it can come off the Oct 19 meeting if it stays at the top? Or okay to have in both places?

Cheryl,

That makes a lot more sense to put PC study session at the top.

I'll fix it ... I happen to be on the page. John, should I move down the Oct. 19 community meeting info, and instead place the upcoming Dec. 10 Planning Commission Study Session at the top of the page?
