

From: Handler, Elisabeth
To: Downtown West Project
Subject: FW: Hello from your alma mater & update on story
Date: Wednesday, March 4, 2020 1:06:13 PM

From: Handler, Elisabeth
Sent: Thursday, January 23, 2020 3:58 PM
To: mappel@google.com; Lori Severino (Lori.Severino@sanjoseca.gov) <Lori.Severino@sanjoseca.gov>; Neaves, Rosario <Rosario.Neaves@sanjoseca.gov>; Kline, Kelly <Kelly.Kline@sanjoseca.gov>; Walesh, Kim <Kim.Walesh@sanjoseca.gov>
Subject: FW: Hello from your alma mater & update on story

This is the Wall Street Journal article that was supposed to run May/June 2019. I will see what direction the article is taking now, and may be in touch with one or more of you after I talk with Nour tomorrow afternoon.

From: Malas, Nour [<mailto:nour.malas@wsj.com>]
Sent: Thursday, January 23, 2020 2:58 PM
To: Handler, Elisabeth <elisabeth.handler@sanjoseca.gov>; nour_malas@harvard.edu
Subject: Re: Hello from your alma mater & update on story

[External Email]

Copying my Harvard address which I get on my phone. Please include it in your reply!

On Thu, Jan 23, 2020 at 5:57 PM Malas, Nour <nour.malas@wsj.com> wrote:

Hi Elisabeth, greetings from Cambridge! I am checking in to tell you that the WSJ has broken my sabbatical bliss with the news that our story on tech & the housing crisis is alive and in editing for publication in the next few days.

At this point I have been disconnected from the news for about six months. Are you free for a phone call some time tomorrow your afternoon to fact check a few things and get broad stroke updates on anything we might need to know?

Thanks for considering such a last minute request.

All the best,

Nour

--

Nour Malas | WSJ | +1 424 384 3666

--

Nour Malas | WSJ | +1 424 384 3666

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.