[External Email]

Hello James,

At the Google Development Application Community Meeting last night, one of the questions that was asked was “Is there anything specific you like or don’t like about the plan?” One thing that I particularly like is the idea of a market at the former Kearney Foundry. Woody mentioned it briefly in the opening presentation. I think that this would be fantastic, especially if it can include produce vendors, meat markets, and other sellers besides just places to eat. It should expand on the concept that San Pedro Square Market and SoFA Market are following and have other types of sales booths besides eats.

Please add this to the comments gathered last night.
